The Wunderlich wine cellars were named after their chief vintner and co-proprietor, Wunderlich Alajos, who is known as "Lojzi".

Lojzi began his vintner activity as an adult, with a real talent. He won a gold medal with his first wine, the Kadarka Rosé 1992, which was also judged to be the best Kadarka in the 1993 national wine competition. Subsequent years brought him more and more recognition: he produced continuously excellent and recognised wines. In addition, he became extremely popular not only for his delicious wines, but also for his well-known hospitality and celebrated talent for cooking (Péter Új, journalist, wrote once, that the "cock stew a la Lojzi" has a place in world heritage). Like the man behind them, Wunderlich wines are joyous and friendly.
